You're invited to a booklaunch

When: Thursday 14th November, 5.30pm Where: Old Anthropology Library (OLD 6.15), LSE

RSVP: anthropology.enquiries@lse.ac.uk

Malinowski's classic work marked a new dawn for anthropological inquiry, and established the grounds for a new subdiscipline: economic anthropology. Our contributors re-examine its legacy, re-exploring its ethnographic foundations, taking a new look at the Kula in the present day but also looking far beyond: at South Africa, Brazil, Argentina and China. They ask provocative questions about the nature of economy, work, circulation, and money.

MAX PLANCK STUDIES IN ANTHROPOLOGY 🛞 ECONOMY - VOLUME 13

Stephen Gudeman,

Chris Hann, Social Anthropology (Halle

Definitions of economy and society, and their proper relationship to each other, have been the perennial concerns of social philosophers. In the early decades of In the early decides of the twenty-first century these became and remain matters of argent political debate. At the forefront of this series are the approaches to these connections to these connections by anthropologists, whose explorations of the local ideas and institutions underpinning social and economic velations illuminate large fields ignored in other disciplines

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF ARGONAUTS Malinowski, Ethnography and Economic

Edited by Chris Hann & Deborah James

This book is remarkably interesting and useful in its composition; it takes us into completely new theoretical territory while tethering conversation back to the moment when Malinowski tadically altered the aims of anthropological investigation. Huon Wardle, St. Andrews University

This book revisits old themes in innovative and creative ways, and provides new understandings of Maliconthypoology specifically. Peter anthropology generally and economic athropology specifically. Peter D. Little, Emory Universit

D. Little, Emory University Malinowski's Argonauts of the Western Partife was a major contribution to anthropological theory and method, while simulanceadly establishing the subfield of economic anthropology. Even a century after its publication, Malinowski's pienering work remains critical for anthropology in a postcolonial age. This solume uses ethnogeaphic studies from around the world to contexualize the work politically and Intellectually, examining its gestation and influence from multiple perspectives. It critically explores the meaning of "economy" for Malinowski from his formation in the Austro-Hungarian Empire to his pathbreaking fieldwork in Melanesia and ensuing areer in London.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF ARGONAUTS

Deborah James is Professor of Anthropology at the London School of Economics. Her book Money from Nothing: Indebtedness and Aspiration in South Africa (Stanford, 2015) explores the lived experience of debt for those many millions who attempt to improve their positions for merely sustain existing livelihoods) in emerging economics. Chris Hann is Emeritus Director at the Max Planck Institute for Social Christman's Enemists Direction and the way related institute of sc Anthropology (Halle/Saale). His publications include Repatriating Polanyi: Market Society in the Visegrad States (CEU Press, 2019) and Work, Society, and the Ethical Self: Chimeras of Freedom in the Neoliberal Era (Berghahn Books, 2021).

Cover image: Kula (Centennial of Argonauts of the Western Pacific).

MAX PLANCK STUDIES IN ANTHROPOLOGY 🔕 ECONOMY - VOLUME 1

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF ARGONAUTS

Malinowski, Ethnography, and Economic Anthropology

Chris Hann & Deborah James

Come and join us for a glass of wine, and hear authors and editors talk about their contributions.

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE